10/10 best puzzle game ever. Love this game!!!!!!!!!!!!!! :). I love this game! Not only can you do challenges on your own, you can also play with your friends or random people on steam. The best part is you can make your own puzzles so it's never ending fun. Everyone should own this imho lol :). Truly wonderful game, I absolutely love it!

The animations, the music, the photos, it's relaxing, fun, challenging.. A perfect combination of everything! Played for several hours on my PC and no bugs or anything weird so far. I would recommend this game in a heartbeat!. It's a fun take on jigsaw games. The jigsaws usually have a couple of peices which are animated which adds an interesting twist to the formula. The graphics are nice and the sound track is quite pleasant. Worth the money.. Pros: No penguins

Cons: Haven't played it long enough .. maybe the penguins are there :(Well, it's puzzles. that's all there is to it. no personalized settings like "I would like not to care about the piece orientation" or anything like that. every puzzle is the same, just an image, sometimes a gif, split into various parts which are rotated randomly.

Those parts, mind you, are all the same. That the pieces are cut out differently is really, really important to puzzles. yet here, each piece is exactly the same. They don't even look nice, like a 3D effect, they really look like cut and paste in paint.

There are free flash puzzle games that are more interesting.

If you just want a puzzle games where each puzzle is just randomly rotated instances of the same piece, no other modes or anything to spice it up, this is for you. me.. despite liking puzzles it was really boring.

at the very least I'd have expected a mode where you could play through a picture folder, generating puzzles on the fly, but there is nothing like this. only the pre-generated puzzles. you can make your ow, but it seems like just one at a time.

Save yourself the money. Even on sale, as I got it, it still charges too much. it has nothing interesting or new to add to the table. at like $2 it would have been OK but $10? nah

EDIT: just tried the free one from windows store (microsoft jigsaw) and it's vastly superior. the pieces actually look different, are differently shaped to each other (you know, like real puzzles), they actually look like real puzzle pieces instead of ms paint cut and paste.. all in all a way nicer experience, and it's free (has ads tho, and no multiplayer as far as I can tell)

It even has more modes to spice it up, like a mode where you need to find pieces to add to an existing partially solution etc. And you can do your own pics as well.

In short, it is what I would have this expected to be, but it's free.. Best jigsaw puzzle game ever!!

The animations, the music, the photos, it's relaxing, fun, challenging.. A perfect combination of everything! Played for several hours on my PC and no bugs or anything weird so far. I would recommend this game in a heartbeat!. Finally, a real jigsaw puzzle game on Steam. Animated Puzzles is a puzzle game in which you put together animated pictures. I wasn't sure how it would work in practice, but colour me surprised, there's much to love about this game.

Just to preface this review, my Internet crashed right when I was posting this review, so it should say something that I've bothered to retype all of it (and even expand it a little bit!).

There are many things that I like about the game and the UI, so I'll bulletpoint my findings:

- The pieces are neatly sorted on the right side of the screen, thus avoiding any clutter.
- The board itself is grid-based. When you drop a piece, it will be placed into one of the pre-defined spots. This doesn't mean the puzzle auto-solves itself; the pieces won't be locked even if you put them in the right spot. It is simply a way to avoid clutter and to better figure out where a given piece fits.
- The pieces themselves are automatically connected if you have two matching pieces next to each other and with the correct orientation. I only wish the game would automatically connect matching pieces regardless of the orientation, for example if both pieces are upside down and placed correctly relative to each other.
- The music is lovely. I wonder if it's possible for users to expand the playlist however they like?
- You can zoom in and out.

- You can preview the picture whenever you want.
 - The puzzles go up to 150 pieces, but perhaps the limit is higher. I hope in the future the game will support puzzles with arbitrary number of pieces, e.g. 500 or even 1000 pieces, especially since the game's UI is so convenient.
 - The game offers three difficulty levels for each puzzle (the higher the difficulty, the more pieces there are) and you can choose four types of pieces for each difficulty level. Time is recorded for each individual piece type at each difficulty level.
 - The game has Steam Workshop support, so you can add static images as puzzles (a Miku puzzle is already available). Hopefully, you'll be able to create animated puzzles in the future. Perhaps there could be some cross-promotion with other games.
 - You can compete with other players online in head-to-head battles. I haven't tested this feature, so I can't say much about it for now, but it is neat it's there.
 - There are daily challenges, but they are unique. Instead of just putting together another puzzle, you have to play various modes. For example, there is one mode where a single piece is placed on the board and you have to figure out where the single provided piece goes. As you continue to place more pieces, you have to consider more possible spots. It's a nice twist on the usual jigsawing.
 - Don't worry about missing a daily, since you can always go back to any days you've missed whenever you like.

To sum up, this is THE jigsaw game on Steam right now. It is laser-focused on providing you a pure, clean and crisp jigsaw experience with non-distracting modern conveniences. If you hate how Pixel Puzzles does things, this game will be a breath of fresh air.

If you are a casual or hardcore jigsaw lover, this game is worth your attention. And if you've managed to read this far, why haven't you already bought the game?

This game is absolutely worth it in its current state and at the current asking price.

I look forward to seeing it grow!

Animated Puzzles is an enjoyable game for all levels- ranging from an easy puzzle with only a few pieces to 800+ pieces. Each puzzle has a "pull out" tray which stores the unplaced pieces but it still allows you to lay pieces onto the puzzle "board" without placing them, which is similar to a real jigsaw puzzle.

This game allows the player to choose from many included puzzles (several levels of difficulty), plus the workshop has even more high quality, user created puzzles to download for free.

You can make your own puzzles from photographs, and choose the shape of the individual pieces for all of the puzzles (traditional jigsaw shape to completely square). Animated Puzzles has several included puzzles with an interesting animated effect on the pieces, though most workshop puzzles are traditional static photos or drawings.

This game allows you to have numerous puzzles that are "in progress" so you aren't required to finish one before beginning another. This is a great feature if you have several people that use your computer to access the game, but want to choose a different puzzle.

Animated Puzzles offers benefits that a traditional jigsaw puzzle can't : I don't have to find a place to store a large puzzle in progress, pieces don't get lost, and my cat can't destroy my puzzle. I was a little unsure about the concept of an electronic jigsaw puzzle until I tried it. I have truly enjoyed this game and I am very glad that I purchased it . If you enjoy jigsaw puzzles then this game is well worth the money. A+. I love this game! Not only can you do challenges on your own, you can also play with your friends or random people on steam. The best part is you can make your own puzzles so it's never ending fun. Everyone should own this imho lol :). Hmm... good game in all, but it should have have the ability to store workshop puzzle so i can play them offline... Other than that good game.. Hello! This game is wonderful, I highly recommend this! It is very fun, relaxing and overall I give it two big thumbs up! I did a "Let's Play" on my channel: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OePMnFQzmrM>

Thank You,
Matthew

KrazyCries. Love this game!!!!!!!!!!!!!! :). I have found this very relaxing and the add ons have helped. I'm doing some of the puzzles from the workshop which also run well.. From Spilsbury to Ravensburger, I used to do a lot of jigsaw puzzles. Heck, I've got a 15,000 piece puzzle sitting here in a box right now. It will stay there though, as these days, my vision and my cats would both make putting that together well nigh impossible. Perhaps I'll never get to do another jigsaw puzzle again.

What's that you say? Animated Puzzles is a jigsaw puzzle game that lets you choose the number of pieces in the puzzles, and also allows you to pan and zoom as you assemble it? Well sign me up!

Actually, I already did get the game, but I guess you knew that since I'm, you know, writing about it now. Despite having lost the dramatic tension, I'll press on to elucidate the salient points without sesquipedalian obfuscation. Oops, \u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665ed that up already. Anyway.

Animated puzzles offers pretty much everything I would hope for in a jigsaw game. As I mentioned, the pan and zoom ability does a lot to make the game easier on the eyes, and while the selection of pictures in the game is a bit slim, Steam workshop support ensures that you can just keep adding pictures of your choice. Heck, upload an old wedding photo and as you assemble it you can pretend that you are putting back together a failed relationship. The possibilities are endless!

Also worth noting is the animation, since thats what the game is called. The animations in the puzzles are pretty low key. Things like clouds passing by, or dandelion seeds floating around. It adds a nice touch without causing performance issues.

Finally, if you want a more challenging experience, you can choose different shapes for the pieces, do the daily challenges, or even go for the leaderboards in time attack. Honestly, this game is so accomodating to however you might like to play, that as long as you actually want to do jigsaw puzzles in the first place, you can be happy with Animated Puzzles.. It's a fun take on jigsaw games. The jigsaws usually have a couple of peices which are animated which adds an interesting twist to the formula. The graphics are nice and the sound track is quite pleasant. Worth the money.
